1953: Dec. 14, 2015 for Feb. 4, 2016

Brief sketches of the four students who hold Class of 1953 Memorial Scholarships are posted on our website, as well as the names of students who hold scholarships endowed by Gordon Beaham and Peter Nomikos. Class of 1953 scholars hail from Illinois, Michigan, Mississippi and Vietnam.

My hometown of Bronxville, NY hosts some top 1953 performers. Many classmates refuse to fully retire, and John Corry is one of them. Last May, the Counseling Center, of NYC, Bronxville and Scarsdale honored John: "We are so pleased that John Corry will be our Benefit Honoree this year. John had an impressive career as a tax lawyer at Davis Polk & Wardwell. He is also the author of several books focused on American History and many know him well for his years of service through the Reformed Church, Gramatan Village which he co-founded, and several other community organizations. John and his lovely wife Emily have lived in Bronxville for over fifty years". Another retirement-refuser is Charley "Toby" Maxwell. After a distinguished career first with Mobil and then as chief energy analyst for decades with Weeden & Co, Charley is now Chairman of the Board of American DG Energy, a growing supplier of energy in the US and UK and headquartered in Waltham, MA. Universities in the Boston area are among their clients. Dick Schmidt has also lived in Bronxville for decades. He may be retired, but he is obviously very bright because he has a second home near Hanover in Quechee, Vermont.

Paul Hertelendy believes that he's one of our eccentric classmates, not because he recently paid class dues in honor of his deceased roommate Joe Fromm, but because he watches soccer referees and not the players. Paul has been a licensed soccer ref in the Berkeley-Oakland area since 1965, with more than 600 games to his credit. Poet Paul's little essay on soccer refereeing is worth a read on our website. Paul hopes that other classmates who consider themselves eccentric will identify themselves. That could spice up our class news!
