2019-1 – Nov. 8, 2018, for Jan. 9, 2019

Hugh Richardson wisely monitors my performance from Atlanta and justifiably chided me for misspelling the 65th reunion attendance of Lynn Parry, who attended on Saturday with guests. Hugh commended Kenagy on his faultless performance as treasurer and reunion registrar. Bob and Lindholm and Matthews are not prone to errors. Clark Driemeyer sent a brief bio of Ed from the HBS Class of '57 alumni_column. Retired as vice chairman of AIG, Ed is now president and director of C. V. Starr and director and vice chairman of Starr International US. A former Charter Trustee of Princeton, he was chairman of the Princeton University Investment Company and its $17 billion endowment. Ed was a trustee of the McCarter Theater Company and trustee and president of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation. He squeezed in time to climb mountains whenever he could. A busy life with more than a normal share of accomplishments.

Herb Hudnut noted that Nick Heyniger lives here at Kendal (along with Hiser, Anah Pytte): “Nick’s father was head Cheerleader for the Class of 1916. He was about 6 foot 7 inches tall and had an operatic baritone voice He was a very fine headmaster of Darrow School. He knew my Dad in college, and both were in WW 1. Heyniger '16 offered me scholarships to attend Darrow for junior and senior years. Unbelievable today, but five of us were accepted from my class (Darrow '49) out of about 28 students. Pete Conrad was one of them and once said “If it had not been for Darrow, I never would have made it to the Moon”.

Obituaries prepared by Chris Webber and in Kansas City for Sanders Lambert are on our class website, but Sandy’s death is only now noted in this column. Cynthia Matthews, widow '56 from Red Bank, phoned that Liz Elwood died recently and told me that Jack Middleton’s wife Nancy died about two years ago. Belated condolences to Sandy’s children, to Jack, and to Liz’s family.
